My daily routine

I am Maria. I am an English teacher at a public school in Rio Verde, Goiás. I wake up at 6 o'clock. I have breakfast at 6:20. I usually have coffee and bread. I have a shower and get dressed. I usually wear jeans, a blouse, and boots in the winter, or a skirt and a blouse in the summer. I pack my bag with all my teaching materials. I walk to the school where I teach English. Class starts at 7 o'clock and ends at 11:25. I have lunch at 12. I eat some salad. I sometimes do some shopping before I walk back to school.

The cultures of the indigenous Indians, Africans, and Portuguese have together formed the modern Brazilian way of life. The Portuguese culture is by far the dominant of these influences; from it Brazilians acquired their language, their main religion, and most of their customs. The Indian population is now statistically small, but Tupí-Guaraní, the language of many Brazilian Indians, continues to strongly influence the Brazilian Portuguese language; other Indian contributions to Brazilian culture are most apparent in the Amazon basin.
